Abstract (en)

The herein disclosed device is related to the security domain, in the context of the transfer of valuables or assets which require safety and protection of persons and property and it is intended for the night service. Particularly, the said device is installed in the vertical position, thus saving space when opened, and it has a reduced thickness when closed comparatively to existing devices in the marketplace. The aforementioned device is characterized in that it comprises a stainless steel box (1), which is structured from the inside (2), wherein two retractable lids are fitted, i.e. an inner lid (3) and an outer (4). The said lids are connected to each other by a triangular lateral element. They are opened by means of a lock (13)(14) which is provided in the inner surface. The element can basculate around the stainless steel box (1), depending as the valuables are deposited from the inside or from the outside.
