Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0014600A1] 1. Process of manufacture of bands by knotting threads into meshes on a loom provided with opposed temples having rotating cylinders (12) covered with points which cause transverse extension of the band at the outlet from the knotting zone, characterized in that the intensity of the tension applied by the temples to the selvages of the band at the outlet from the knotting zone is regulated by obliquely orienting the direction (15) of the axes of the tenting cylinders (12) with respect to the transverse direction of the band so that such axes meet at a point located downstream of the position of the temples.
