Abstract (en)
[origin: WO8002109A1] The mattress (27) is comprised of an endless cover placed over several rows of rollers (11, 16) disposed in a longitudinal direction of the bed. The upper part of the mattress can be arranged side by side in longitudinal direction. The upper part of the mattress is displaceable on either side by means of endless chains (18, 19) placed at the head (1) and at the feet (3) of the bed. To this effect, the rollers (12) of the second row relative to the exterior can be raised and the external rollers (11) displaced towards the middle of the bed and set back by rising and lowering. With this bed, disabled persons can have their positions changed easily and without pain.
