Abstract (en)
An improved type of pallet for handling goods is, according to the invention, provided with means for reinforcing the pallet platform and means for supporting the pallet platform on the ground, which are distinct from one another. The distinct, supporting means consist of supporting elements (4) having a substantially cylindrical cross-section and being provided at the ends thereof with a pierced neck (7) and a ground foot (8), respectively. The neck (7) is fitted into a corresponding hole formed through the boarding member (3) and is locked in place thereon by the aid of a rivet (9) the shank of which immovably fits within the hole (7 min ) in the neck (7). The distinct, reinforcing means consist of pierced laths (5) which are fitted against the lower surface of the boarding member (3) and are locked in place there by simultaneously inserting the neck (7) of supports (4) into both the holes (5 min ) in the laths (5) and the holes in the boarding (3), where by the locking in place is finally achieved by means of the rivets (9). Laths (5) may also be fitted to the ground feet (8) of supports (4). In an alternative form, anchoring of the supports to the boarding member is by means of a protruding rim (70) provided on the body (60) of the supports, and the reinforcing laths (50) are fitted to the feet (80) of the supports. In still an other form, the supports (41) are partially inserted within recesses (52) in the boarding member (31), and are locked in place therein by gluing.
