Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0096080A1] A method of drying and shaping a clothing mainly formed of vegetable fiber or blended with vegetable fiber and synthetic fiber, which has the steps of forming a body-shaped bag (21) formed of grey or hard air permeability, mounting the clothing, and pressing (at 16) the hem of the clothing, then blowing hot air into the bag, thereby drying and shaping the clothing with the surface heat (13) and the hot air slightly exhausted from the texture of the bag. Thus, the clothing can be advantageously finished via the body-shaped bag formed to provide the surface heat and hot air hardly exhausted through the surface.
