Abstract (en)
A hydrotherapeutic aerator assembly for pulsating massage comprises a mixing nozzle (6) which produces a jet of water and air, to be manually directed at any desired part of the body. An air inlet tube (5) receives a supply from a compressor (1), and is equipped with a pressure regulator (3) and a manometer (4). The water supply system comprises a pump (7), a heater (9), a mixer (15) and a thermometer (17). The mixer (15) combines cold water from the duct (12) and warm water from the duct (10) according to the desired outlet temperature, which can be monitored at thermometer (17). The nozzle assembly (6) includes a swiveling jet-controlling ring.
