Abstract (en)

Apparatus is provided for depositing repeatable patterns of dye-carrying foam onto a moving web. An elongated manifold (26) containing foam under pressure extends transversely to the direction of movement of the web. The manifold is provided with a plurality of foam discharge ports which are selectively opened and closed to establish the desired pattern. Variations in the pattern also are produced by reciprocating the manifold transversely to the web's direction of movement while the ports are being opened and closed.
