Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0143422A2] The tie-on package label for identifying packages, especially flight luggage, having a stuck-on removable tear-off part which, before being removed, bears the same inscription as the tie-on package label is to be redesigned in such a manner as to be suitable for printing with the aid of a computer-controlled typewriter. This is achieved in that a large number of tie-on package labels are connected to form a unit by means of a perforation along their two longitudinal sides and in that the tear-off part is arranged on the side of the tie-on package label which is intended to be printed. <IMAGE>
