Abstract (en)

[origin: WO8404693A1] The ski has a width which substantially doubles that of a ski for downhill or excursion skiing, and is comprised between 12 and 15 centimeters, and its length is five to six time its width. The ski comprises a cambered portion (3) forming a concave bottom surface and separated from the spatula (1) by a substantially planar portion (4). The rear part (5) of the cambered portion is planar and goes down under the plane (6) defined by the planar portion (4). A removable retainer plate is inserted under the sole of the ski and comprises retainer clips enabling to ski uphill.
