Abstract (en)
[origin: US4794971A] Awning with a canopy consisting of several strips (18) extending in the direction of extension which are rolled up on one and the same canopy roller. The longitudinal edges of the strips (418, 518, 618) can overlap one another, and the strips (418, 518) can be attached on the canopy roller (13, 113), offset with respect to one another in the circumferential direction thereof, while being connectible to one another along their longitudinal edges by the use of a fastening device such as a bristle trim or the like (23, 24), or with the edges adjacent each other without overlapping, whereby the edges can be released or separated by the application of wind pressure.
