Abstract (en)

A method of packing articles including positioning an article retainer (20) around a temporary article support (10) and placing articles (42) on such temporary support within the retainer, measuring the height of the articles in the retainer and automatically forming a container (52) of enclosure of a size to enclose the articles. Thereafter the formed container (52) is suitably positioned around the articles and container top (74) is put on the container end to close the container and complete the packaging operation.
