Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0160623A2] The brush or broom has a support head (1) for the bristles. On the surface (4) of this head, opposite the handle, there are zones (1a) with inclined projections (3) near each end (2). These projections are inclined at an acute angle to the surface. Holes are made in these projections, and also in the central part of the head, perpendicular to their surfaces. Tufts of bristles are implanted in the holes and those in the projections are pref. longer than those in the central part so that the extremities of the bristles are all in the same plane.
