Abstract (en)
An advertising apparatus for use with scaffolds, towers or any other similar structure. Mesh members made out of a flexible material are mounted on a structure so that it is at least partially covered. Pouch and panel members containing information are mounted to the mesh members thereby prominently displaying messages. The pouch members and the panel members can be easily changed or rearranged so that the advertising space may be marketed easily in short or long periods of time. The pouch and panel members are covered with a transparent flexible member that protects it against the elements.
