Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0238208A2] A cosmetics dispenser has a plurality of containers (13) each with a respective closure (7) which is attached to a respective applicator. The containers are releasably held together, for example by a casing or connections between adjacent pairs of the containers, so that containers of different cosmetics materials or different types of applicator can be assembled together and individual containers can be replaced as desired. A common handle is provided, engageable with any selected one of the applicators.
