Abstract (en)

1. Lockable bolt comprising a casing (1) in which at least one latch (2) is slidably mounted, which latch can be locked in the outgoing position by at least one movable element (3) which cooperates with a notch (4) provided on latch (2), characterized in that the latch comprises a slot (5) opening into the said notch (4) along such a direction that, when the movable element (3) is received in notch (4) and when the latch (2) undergoes a force of retraction in casing (1), the said movable element penetrates into the slot (5) and deforms a part of the latch which is thus definitively wedged inside casing (1).
