Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0308833A1] In the centre of an area accommodating the golf course (20) there is a central teeing-off region (22) with teeing-off segments (1-18), arranged adjacently along its periphery, and the greens (1'-18') are grouped at different distances around the central teeing-off region (22). The course can be used simultaneously by several players without mutual interference or risk of injury. This applies particularly if one green (1'-18') is assigned to each teeing-off segment (1-18) and lateral bounding of the teeing-off segments (1-18) ensures that balls can always only be struck into a playing area covering the assigned green (1'-18'). <IMAGE>
