Abstract (en)

This invention relates to the manual dispensing of elongate flexible material which material is wrapped as a roll about a hollow core (9). More particularly, this invention relates to a handheld dispenser comprising a handle (1), a spindle (3) projecting from the handle so that the core can be rotatably mounted thereon and a resilient skirt (4) defining with the spindle a groove (5) into which a projecting end of the core (9) is received and against which core the skirt may be manually urged to provide braking means for the core.
