Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0316589A1] Band for pleating clothing, comprising a thread system which consists of inelastic threads (11) and into which have been pulled a plurality of threads (10) spaced apart a distance (a), which extend throughout the entire band length without knots and which float alternately on the two band sides. To make it possible to use the band to make garments which are free of any closure element, the band is constructed in such a way that two continuous threads (10) made of an elastic material are spaced apart an interval (12) which is larger than the thread spacing (a), that intervals (12) and spacings (a) alternate over the breadth (B) of the band (13), and that it possesses continuous elastic threads (10) which are grouped together in the same position without spacing in between in pairs or larger groups. <IMAGE>
