Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0320048A2] An office machine, especially a printing or copying machine, with a paper supply magazine into which can be inserted at least two sheet and paper cassettes single-sheet feeder drives capable of being triggered by their own driving motors so that a single sheet can be supplied as desired from one of the triggered cassettes into the office machine. Convertibility to operation with additional sheet paper cassettes is possible in a simple manner carried out by untrained operating personnel if the sheet paper cassettes (2, 3, 4) with their associated single-sheet feeder drives (5, 6, 7) form a design unit whose electric motor leads can be connected by plugs to control sockets in the office machine (1).
