Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0338367A2] The core-drilling tool for rock bores in underground soil formations comprises an outer tube (6) which can be connected at its top end via attachment means to the bottom end of a drill-pipe string (3), which can be set in drive rotation, and at its bottom end to a core-drilling bit (7), and an inner tube (8) which forms a construction unit which can be conveyed separately to the surface and has a support part (18), which is supported in the outer tube (6) in such a way that it rotates with the latter, as well as a core-tube part (20) for receiving a bored core, which core-tube part (20) is suspended on the support part (18) by means of a bearing arrangement in such a way as to be locked against rotation relative to the outer tube (6). Here, the core-tube part (20) is provided with a measuring unit (10), arranged in its upper area, for recording, processing and storing data from the working face, which data form drill-hole, drilling-core and/or drilling-process parameters.
