Abstract (en)

The invention relates to a display tag holder for an elongated hanger assembly, said hanger assembly being of the type comprising a rod for suspending objects and a means of attachment to a perforated board or shaped strip. According to the invention, the holder comprises an elongated body (2) joined at one end to a connection plate (3) and at its other end to a frame (4) for carrying a display tag; the elongated body is made up of two sections (2.1 and 2.2), the one being arranged in the extension of the other, and the two being snap-fastened together, the section (2.2) having a plurality of weak transverse zones (5) defining a series of segments, so as to allow the sections concerned to be snap-fastened on for the different possible lengths of said holder after it has been broken or cut across one of these weak zones. Application to display labelling in shops and supermarkets. <IMAGE>
