Abstract (en)

A child resistant cap (20) is desirably fastened onto a container (10) which container has a peripheral recess (15) located below an extending top dome portion (12). The cap has a first inner partial peripheral flange (19) having a given opening (35) and a second inner partial peripheral flange (18) located above said first flange and having a diametrically opposed opening (30), with said first flange inserted into said recess to cause said second flange to coact with said extending top portion when said cap is emplaced on said container.
