Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0360005A1] A crosshandled guard baton which comprises a hollow club (1) and a crosshandle (A) which is branched thereon at a place toward a club end. The inventive guard baton is featured in accommodating at least one slender cylindrical member (11, 12) in the hollow space of the club (1) in retracted form usually, thereby saving in the point of space or length needed to be carried by a user, and in case of need, this retracted member (11, 12) can extend telescopically out of the club end to form a kind of pseudo-sword, hence so convenient to the police or guard personnel.
