Abstract (en)
[origin: WO9007453A1] A collapsible bottle for storing household liquids such as rinsing or washing agents, which can stand upright both when empty and when full, has an ellipsoidal cross-section, which preferably terminates in edges, and stabilizing edges joined to a limp, flexible base. The base sags downward when the bottle is full but is retroverted inward when the bottle is set down. The bottle has a (screw) closure at the top, through which it can be filled vertically from above.
