Abstract (en)
The present invention relates to a wrist-watch comprising a case and, on each side, a support piece fastened to this case, of which a part extends beyond the lateral wall of the said case in order to act as a support for the wound part of the strap. This wrist-watch is noteworthy in that the part (5) of the support piece (4) extending beyond the lateral wall (7) of the case (1) has at least one part of its face inclined downwards and in that the end of the strap (2) is wound over a profiled insert (9) in the general shape of a loop having a slightly inclined upper part, which insert (9) is fastened rigidly on the support piece (4). <IMAGE>
