Abstract (en)
[origin: WO9001973A1] A device for storing tennis balls under pressure comprises a pump housing (5) in the form of a gripping handle connected to the container (1) which holds the tennis balls in such a way that a passage for the hand (6) is located between the pump housing (5) and the container and the pump handle (15) projects above the container (1) even in the retracted position. A device of this type is particularly convenient and completely safe to use.
