Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0412313A2] The invention relates to a cold storage box for keeping cool containers filled with liquid, in particular cylindrical containers, which consists of a pot-shaped base part, in which at least one cooling element arranged on the side walls of the containers is used exchangeably, and of a cover which can be placed thereon and is recessed in the region of the containers. The invention is characterised in that the base part (3) has the form of a prism with rectangular side surfaces (6) which surround the containers (2), which can be brought into closest arrangement in a hexagonal manner, as a whole, in that there is arranged on the inside of each side wall (6) of the base part (3) a plate-shaped cooling element (4), these being profiled, for the purpose of mutual support, at the corners of the prismatic base part (3) in such a manner that their movement in the interior of the base part (3) is not possible, and in that the cover (5) has a single central recess (7), the edge sections (8) of which run parallel to the side walls (6). <IMAGE>
