Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0424646A1] The invention relates to a slatted mattress support with a frame, a number of spring strips (3) laid next to one another, whose ends are located in pocket-shaped bearing bodies (2) fixed to the side parts (1) of the frame, and with at least one device, which may be set on at least two spring strips (3) for individual adjustment of the spring characteristics of the slatted mattress support. In order to avoid increased material consumption for the spring strips and rattling noises, according to the invention the device comprises a clip (9,15,16) which couples together at least two spring strips (3) and is adjacent to their upper and/or undersides. <IMAGE>
