Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0439690A1] A toilet brush holder substantially consists of a housing (1) and of a drip tray (2) which can be inserted in the lower region (8) of the housing and is removable downwards. In order to ensure secure retention and easy removal without restricting the freedom of the design in respect of the housing (1) in the lower region (8), the drip tray (2) and the housing (1) are locked together by resilient positive fitting. To this end, a restoring device is fitted to the drip tray (2) and carries a locking member (18) which engages into the corresponding locking recess (13) and can be pressed out of the latter. <IMAGE>
