Abstract (en)

The invention relates to a universal connection of a fluegas pipe intended to bring about the junction between the outlet orifice of a heating apparatus and a chimney flue. The universal connection consists of two elbows with built-in means of orientation and inclination as well as an intermediate telescopic tube. Each elbow (5) is formed of a connection base plate (8), of a bell (9) which is orientable on the base plate (8) and of an outlet nozzle (10) which is inclinable in relation to the bell (9). The invention is of interest to manufacturers of heating equipment and accessories.
