Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0451737A2] The pivoting fitting for a corner cupboard has a rotatable support (11) on which at least one supporting floor is fixed. Hinged on the support (11), by means of mountings, are two door leaves (3,4) which lie at an angle to one another and with which an opening of the corner cupboard can be closed. The door leaves (3,4) can be adjusted from a closed position into an open position. For this purpose, the door leaves (3,4) can essentially be adjusted radially in relation to the rotation axis of the pivoting fitting. As a result of this radial closing action, the door leaves (3, 4) are pushed with their outer sides against the front faces of the side walls of the corner cupboard, through which a gentle closing of the corner cupboard aperture is made possible without the utilisation of complicated and costly braking devices. <IMAGE>
