Abstract (en)
1) Stackable loading-pallet constituted by two superimposed loading trays (11, 12) of generally rectangular shape, separated by spacers (13) which delimit longitudinal and transverse traversing openings (15, 16) for the purpose of defining at least two longitudinally and transversely spaced housings for receiving the forks of a handling machine, in which the first tray (11) delimits the bottom of a cavity (20) with divergent edges (21) for the fitting-in of a peripheral rib (22) formed around the second tray (12) of an adjacent pallet, characterised in that the peripheral rib (22) of the second tray (12) and the divergent edges (21) of the first tray (11) are provided with chamfers (23) formed on a belt around the loading trays (11, 12) for the purpose of facilitating the centring, stacking and locking together of the stacked pallets. <IMAGE>
