Abstract (en)

A peel-openable container for suppositories, produced by overlapping two sheets, (10), (11), each having a plurality of bulges (12) for containing a suppository, with each other so that the bulges of one sheet face the bulges of other sheet at the respective peripheries, and then sealing the overlapped portion (15) of the two sheets excluding the bulges, in a form of a number of lines with appropriate line-to-line intervals; in which container smooth uniformly sealed areas (17) of such small width as to give substantially no hindrance to peel-opening of the container are formed at least at the portions along the two-side contours of each bulge. <IMAGE>
