Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0460275A1] A fastener for an opened window or door blind has a coupling piece 5, arranged either on the blind or on the masonry, and a locking element arranged opposite the coupling piece and fastened respectively to the masonry or blind. The locking element possess a supporting plate 2, on which there is a blocking slide 7 which is urged into a locking position and which interacts with a force accumulator 12 arranged in a channel 23 in the supporting plate and equipped with a catch nose 11 and is held in a catch position. When the coupling piece is guided up to a stop portion of the supporting plate, the catch of the blocking slide is released, so that the latter can engage behind the coupling piece. <IMAGE>
