Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0479149A2] A stabilising shoe to relieve an ankle joint has a sole, a shaft (2), a shaft cut (3) and an upper opening (6). In at least one side region (7, 8) of the shaft (2), a cutout (9, 10) is formed, in which in each case a side part (12, 13) of a splint (11) to relieve the ankle joint is arranged. By this design, the splint can remain on the foot of the user and the shoe can for example be removed at night. <IMAGE>
