[origin: WO9204592A1] A device for camouflaging military equipment consists of a frame bearing several bearing arms (1) carrying a camouflage net or the like. The upper end of at least a few of the bearing arms (1) is secured to a connecting component (2). In order simply to ensure that the equipment to be camouflaged presents an irregular shape and ensure easy fitting and dismantling, the frame consists of elastically or plastically deformable arms.
