Abstract (en)
[origin: WO9207231A1] The invention relates to a sub-calibre cartridge (1) for recoilless practice weapons whereby. With this cartridge when the practice projectile is expelled, a counterweight (10) is driven out of a charge container (14) closed off by a cover or dish (14). In order to ensure at the cover dish is reliably broken and that the same time to even out the recoil and reduce the safety area behind the practice weapon, it is proposed according to the invention to provide the cover dish (11) with at least one aperture (14) and to close it off with a foil (16, 17) which is torn when the counterweight (10) is expelled. The foils used are preferably self-adhesive aluminium foils.
