Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0505777A1] Method for washing and bleaching laundry in a program-controlled washing machine having a laundry drum rotating in a tub and a washing-agent feed device designed as a drawer and having a plurality of chambers for washing agents and washing additives, in which the washing process is subdivided into a prewashing or soaking phase (I), a main washing phase (II) and a rinsing and spinning phase (III). To make the separate supply of a bleaching agent in a washing machine of the type in question substantially simpler, one of the chambers of the feed device is used for supplying a bleaching agent, this bleaching agent being flushed into the washing drum only after the start of the main washing phase (II) with a certain time delay. <IMAGE>
