Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0514574A1] The tent (1), having a roof with side edges (12) and side walls which can be attached thereto, comprises a supporting structure (2) of light metal and/or plastic and is intended for a large number of purposes. It can be used, for example, as a garden tent, a sunshade, an umbrella or as a vending stand for trade fairs and other meetings. The light metal can, for example, be aluminium which is anodised or has an electrostatically deposited powder coating. The tent (1) is designed to be anchored by means of ground hooks or, for erection on a hard substrate, by means of foot-plates, and can be pulled tight by means of guy ropes. As compared with conventional embodiments, the present tent, because of the use of larger sections, is more stable and much lighter, and is well suited to be carried in a private car. The tent (1), together with its frame or supporting structure (2) can also be effortlessly carried even by a not very powerful woman. <IMAGE>
