Abstract (en)

A method of making a label-equipped sheet in which a release liner (16) has one face thereof equipped with pressure sensitive adhesive (18) and adhered to one surface of a base stock sheet (11), the base stock sheet being die cut in a closed perimeter within the confines of the release liner, the die cutting including a generally linear segment (22) which is adjacent an area of the release liner free of adhesive to provide readily finger engageable portion of the label, the adhesive-free area being provided by either interrupting the application of the adhesive to the liner or by removing the already applied adhesive by removing a die cut strip of the base stock.
