Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0525358A1] The invention relates to a work table or office desk having a table structure and a work top (11) supported by the table structure, in which the table structure has a horizontal cross member (10) whose ends are connected in each case to a table leg (15") provided with a foot element (16). Using simple connecting elements (17"), the table legs are fastened to the cross member (10) in such a way that they can be moved from a space-saving storage position into a stable position of use with little assembly effort.
