Abstract (en)
The invention is concerned with means and method for providing re-usable displays of the type that are formed of alphanumeric characters and are usable in shop windows and the like. Each character can be formed from a number of like elements and strips thereof, the elements being in the form of elongate rectangles having chamfered or tapered or rounded end portions and the elements and/or strips being made from or coated with a material which allow them to be peeled from the display surface for subsequent re-use. <IMAGE>
