Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0542116A1] The invention relates to a shuttering element for producing cutouts in precast concrete compound units. According to the invention, this shuttering element comprises at least two separate side wall parts (1 to 4) which can be assembled to form a frame, the wall parts having, at the abutment points, stop surfaces (1a' to 4b') via which each side wall part is supported on the adjoining side wall parts with respect to forces which are directed into the interior of the shuttering element. <IMAGE>
