Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0554166A1] The steam iron comprises a water tank (1) feeding an evaporation chamber (5a). It comprises at least one cartridge (3) containing a product for the treatment of the water and/or of the textiles to be ironed which is other than a demineralising product, means being provided for bringing the water of the tank into contact with the treatment product and for distributing the resulting water onto the textiles to be ironed. The invention is used particularly for improving ironing. <IMAGE>
