Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0556475A1] A handle for sacks or bags with a flat bottom, preferably with a cross or block bottom, consists of two strips of material which, in their position of use, are bent in an L-shape in cross-section, of which the one limb in each case, lying approximately in one plane, is bonded to the bottom and the other limbs resting against one another are provided with the handle. In order to prevent the handle (17) being torn out, even under relatively heavy loading, said handle consists of a material strip which is folded in a U-shape and whose handle limbs are bonded to the limbs of the strips of material (6, 11) between the latter which rest against and are bonded to one another. <IMAGE>
