Abstract (en)

[origin: WO9212229A1] Described are free-flowing dry concentrates with a long shelf life, consisting of coarse-grained compacted particles and containing fine-grained components (a) without marked adhesive or bonding properties and fine-grained adhesive components (b) with marked adhesive or bonding properties, the compacted particles being formed substantially in the absence of shearing forces. The compacted particles contain microdispersed air, thus giving the compacted particle a greater internal surface area and hence a higher rate of dissolution.
