Abstract (en)

The reel according to the invention is intended for storing and transporting flexible materials, especially electrical cables or the like, and allows rapid and effective replacement of the juxtaposed segments of the cylindrical central drum supporting the cables. It includes two side flanges (11) and a central drum (12). The side flanges are composed of an outer annular element (13) and of a central circular element (14) coaxial with the annular element. Between these two elements an annular space (15) is provided through which segments (23) made of wood, synthetic material or metal are inserted axially in order to form the central drum. The flanges are connected by spacers (cross-members) (22) engaged in the said annular space.
