Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0568843A1] The invention relates to a marking strip for labelling airline luggage. The strip has a main part and a control section adjoining the latter in the longitudinal direction and divided by a separation cut. The control section and an adjoining region of the main part have an adhesive coating on the back which is masked by a silicone-coated masking strip that is fixedly connected to the main part and interrupted at a line of separation at a distance from the separation cut of the label strip. In this arrangement, the masking strip is directly bonded in one process step, during joining, to the marking strip at a strongly adhesive region formed on the masking strip. An additional layer for fixing the masking strip to the main part is avoided.
