Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0572862A1] A sports boot including a flap, particularly usable for the quarter and/or the shell. The flap includes a first rigid element (9a,9b,9c,9d) and a second soft element (10a,10b,10c,10d). The first rigid element laterally affects the leg and/or the foot of the user and is associable, in a removable or fixed manner, with the quarter and/or the shell. The second soft element instead affects the tibial and/or upper metatarsal region. A flap is thus obtained which, by having two degrees of resilience, can be applied at a shell or at a quarter made of a material which is not of extremely high quality and is thus less rigid, although providing an easy insertion of the foot inside the boot. Conversely, a stiffer boot may be provided, by using materials of higher technical characteristics, for high performance boots for competition. <IMAGE>
