Abstract (en)

The invention relates to architectural equipment intended to define a boundary of a location, including a horizontal element (10) and at least one vertical element (12) supporting the said horizontal element, and comprising a lighting system (24) for illuminating the equipment and showing the boundary of the location when necessary. The lighting system and its supply wires (22) are incorporated in the horizontal element (10) so as not to be locatable when it is not switched on and to illuminate the vertical element or elements (12) when it is switched on. <IMAGE>
